Dear Sir/Madam,

We represent Algaecal Inc.

According to a Who Is search you host the website www.algaecalfraud.com (please see attached document entitled "Whois algaecalfraud").

We believe this website was created for nefarious purposes by James Finlayson, an ex-employee of Algaecal. The contact and registrant information provided on the registration are false. The address does not exist and the owner of the telephone number has no knowledge of this domain name.

This website contains confidential and defamatory information in violation of the attached order of Mr. Justice Leask from August 15, 2012 (please see attached document entitled "Order Made After Application"). The website further contains copyright protected material for which no license has been obtained.

We therefore request that you immediately disable access to the site and terminate service.

Furthermore, we request you provide us with any additional details of the registrant such as, but not limited to, any additional contact information, correspondence and financial information which you have in your possession.

For your information, there is an outstanding warrant for the arrest of Mr. Finlayson in relation to this matter.

Please do not hesitate to contact me should you have any questions or require clarification.

With warm regards,

Sean Alexander

Dear Sirs/Mesdames:

Re: www.algaecalfraud.com

We represent Algaecal Inc.

We have received no response to our e-mail dated April 9th, 2013 (attached) informing you of a Court Order restraining the owner of the domain name www.algaecalfraud.com. In particular, we would draw you attention to paragraphs 1 and 3 of the Order:

"1. The Defendant and his agents shall keep confidential and not access, use, disclose, display, distribute, post, communicate, expose or otherwise provide to anyone other than the Plaintiff or the Plaintiff's representative, any and all information, documents (including electronic versions and documents accessible via the internet), knowledge, or data pertaining to the business and affairs of the Plaintiff and of the Plaintiff's customers and suppliers, including without limitation internal communications, business plans and strategies, communications between the Plaintiff and its existing and potential customers and suppliers, names and contact information of the Plaintiff's existing and potential customers and suppliers, details of shipments to the Plaintiff, and non-public information regarding the Plaintiff's products and proposed products, including product development plans and all information regarding AlgaeCal CA (collectively the "Confidential Information")

3. The Defendant, either directly or through his agents, shall not publish, or cause to be published, including on the internet and in any electronic format, the words complained of in the Notice of Civil Claim or words of the same or similar nature, including any statements impugning the safety of the Plaintiff's products, the adequacy of studies of its products, or the honesty and integrity of the Plaintiff and its representative (collectively the "Defamatory Statements")"

[Emphasis Added]

We note that OrangeWebsite Terms of Service lists the following:

"Sites hosted on OrangeWebsite.com's service(s) are regulated only by Icelandic Law. The only exception to this rule is if the material has been found to be defamatory by a court, as evidenced by a court order. OrangeWebsite.com is not in a position to investigate and validate or invalidate the veracity of individual defamation claims, which is why we rely on the legal system and courts to determine whether or not material is indeed considered defamatory. In any case in which a court order indicates material is defamatory, libelous, or slanderous in nature; we will disable access to the material. Similarly, in any case in which the Icelandic Court has placed an injunction against specified content or material; we will comply and remove or disable access to the material in question.”

The owner of www.algaecalfraud.com is in clear breach of the above mentioned order and there is a pending warrant for his arrest in British Columbia. Therefore, this website is in breach of your Terms of Service.

Moreover, the owner of www.algaecalfraud.com has been advertising his site via mass SPAM emailings, most recently on April 15, 2013 (see examples attached). We note that OrangeWebsite terms of service lists the following:

“3.) Zero Tolerance Spam Policy

Sites advertised via SPAM (Spamvertised) may not be hosted on our servers. This provision includes, but is not limited to SPAM sent via fax, phone, email, instant messaging, or usenet/newsgroups. No organization or entity listed in the ROKSO may be hosted on our servers. Any account which results in our IP space being blacklisted will be immediately suspended and/or terminated.

OrangeWebsite reserves the right to require changes or disable as necessary any web site, account, database, or other component that does not comply with its established policies, or to make any such modifications in an emergency at its sole discretion.

OrangeWebsite reserves the right to charge the holder of the account used to send any unsolicited e-mail a clean up fee or any charges incurred for blacklist removal. This cost of the clean up fee is entirely at the discretion of OrangeWebsite.”

Therefore, www.algaecalfraud.com is again breach your Terms of Service.

Very shortly proceedings will be commenced in the United States and Mexico for among other things, unfair competition, unlawful use of confidential information, conversion, interference with economic relations and interference with contractual relations. In this suit we will be naming all parties concerned with the furtherance of the offences.

As noted above, the website www.algaecalfraud.com is in breach of your Terms of Service and in violation of a Court Order. We therefore request that you immediately disable access and terminate service. If the website is immediately disabled we will name OrangeWebsite in the new proceedings. We sincerely hope we do not have to do so as this would inflict unnecessary cost and inconvenience on you but, as we are sure you can appreciate, Algaecal Inc. must take steps to protect its reputation from such defamatory and pernicious attacks.

Sincerely,

GOWLING LAFLEUR HENDERSON LLP

Dear Reader,

If you have done business or attempted to do business with AlgaeCal Inc of Vancouver BC, or AlgaeCal Distribution Inc of Barbados then you will want to read this for your own good. There is compelling evidence that AlgaeCal has been involved in fraudulent activities involving their own finished products and the AlgaeCal raw ingredients.

The evidence is being revealed on the following blog, media outlets have been informed and there are journalists that are publishing this story very shortly.

Dear Sir/Madam,

We have attempted to contact you regarding the website www.algaecalfraud.com on several occasions through a variety of methods. As mentioned in our previous communications this website is in breach of a court order. To date the website remains active.

You have not responded to our communications so we are forced to commence legal proceedings against you. On Monday we will file an application to name you in the pending suit against the owner of the website.

Moreover, we are preparing a similar action in the United States and, should the website remain active, we will name you in that suit too.

It is unfortunate that you have chosen to ignore our communications, the court order and your own terms of service. We had hoped this matter would be resolved without causing you to incur the cost and inconvenience of a court action.

Subject: FDA Loop Holes - Ingredient Switch

Hi Guys,

Here is the spec sheet and support tests for AlgaeCal CA.

Dean Neuls

AlgaeCal Inc.

I must tell you about very recent developments with AlgaeCal: we just got tests in that indicate that the lead in the product is too high for sales into California (due to stringent Prop 65 rules). The good news is we began experimenting with using only the interior of the algae hoping that the high lead was because of the exterior of the plant- and we were correct. So we have changed our production process to discard the exterior and only mill and bag the interior - resulting in all heavy metals being much lower - a cleaner product. Also good news is that the calcium is higher (minimum is 37%) so less material is needed to provide our clinical dosage. With this higher calcium percentage 1kg of material will make 17.5 bottles (a month's supply providing the clinical dosage) rather than 12.9 bottles that the previous material did at 30% calcium.

However, we won't have this material ready to ship to you for 4-6 weeks. I'm very sorry that this will interrupt your launch plans - but it is a necessary switch we must make for legal reasons.

Please let me know if I can mail you a sample of the new material right away.

Sincerely,

Mike

This 2.5 kg AlgaeCal-CA sample was packed in 2 x 1kg bag, and 1 x 0.5kg bag total 3 bags = 2.5 kg. We don't have any info on file for AlgaeCal-CA.

No we will continue to offer both- because different companies are used to = formulating with the original (re: calcium level differences).

As to your question about discarding the exteriors: we were told that the interior may have a different Ca level - and found that was true.

The price is the same as it's the same algae. We're just choosing to discard the exterior now.

Regards,

Mike

Bone Strength Take Care with AlgaeCal, Algas Calcareas contains calcium in its most absorbable form in addition to strontium, other trace minerals, and vitamins needed to regain and maintain bone strength.

Review

Yes, the instruction to take the tablets with an 8-oz glass of water in the middle of a meal is ridiculous. It gives me the impression that the company doesn't know what they are talking about. Water will dilute the enzymes and therefore has a negative impact on digestion. The formula is inadequate; magnesium among other bone health minerals are inadequate or missing. The form of calcium is oxalate which can cause kidney stones. There were NO INDEPENDENT studies on AlgaeCal.

Review

Ralonate is the patented chemical that binds to strontium ions so it can be packaged as a pill. Studies show that the key here isn't the Ralonate at all, but the need for Strontium (II) ions in the blood when there is a deficiency of Ca(II). Citrate also provides the same delivery vehicle for Strontium (II), but it simply is not patentable, hence no profits or motivation for studies. Recent Strontium citrate and Strontium malonate (a competing patented version) studies both show the same benefits as the Ralocate version.

Review

Coral calcium has been hyped a lot, but my nutrition prof was not impressed with it. As a supplement in pill form, we'd look for calcium citrate, chelated calcium or (last choice) calcium lactate. A good idea is to buy high-quality products and rotate among brands each time you buy. We are never 100% sure that these natural products have in them exactly the ingredients they say, hence the high-quality names and the rotation. At the risk of sounding like a nag, may I add a few remarks: 1) there's something wrong with your 2mg dosage. A minimum dose for an osteoporosis patient would be one gram per day, which is 1000 milligrams. Please pay strict attention to the label on the bottle. You are looking for the elemental calcium content, not the milligrams or grams of calcium compound. For example, a 600 mg Ca tablet can actually contain only 150 mg of elemental calcium. Most high-quality manufacturers will specify on the label the milligram content of the compound and also the milligram content of elemental calcium. If the label does not present this information, it would be best to avoid this product. 2) calcium (Ca) must always be combined with magnesium (Mg). The reason is that a high-calcium or calcium-only intake will result in a net calcium depletion of the bone tissue. The body must always maintain Ca/Mg in a specific balance in the bloodstream. If the human being overdoses on calcium only, the ingenious body will dissolve bone tissue to obtain the magnesium necessary to keep the blood balance. This important fact is sometimes neglected by medical doctors. A common practice is to prescribe 1 or 2 grams of calcium only, while neglecting magnesium. A recipe for disaster. The proportion of Ca to Mg is about 2 to 1. Most high-quality calcium preparations will also present magnesium in the right proportion. Or you can buy them separately. If buying separately, the same caution re elemental magnesium will apply. Ideally, you will be looking for something like 1 gram of elemental calcium plus 500 mg elemental magnesium per day. This should be taken in staggered doses during the day, with meals because Ca Mg absorb better with food. For example, one 500 mg Ca with 200-250 mg Mg with lunch, another with dinner, a third with breakfast if you like. 3) all osteoporosis patients should modify and re-work their entire nutrition program. The goal here is to prevent calcium loss from the bones, rather than simply increasing the oral intake. Can you find someone to work with you, possibly in a low-cost clinic associated with a good school of naturopathy or a nutrition faculty in your area. Your goal here is to change gradually from a diet that burns to an acid ash this is the typical North American diet to one that leaves a more alkaline ash. Foods to reduce are meat, excessive protein, junk foods, processed commercial foods, soda pop, excessive sugar, white flour products and coffee. Foods to increase are simple. More vegetables. More fruit. More vegetables. Whole grains. More vegetables. Beans and lentils. More vegetables. 4) more on nutrition. Authorities are divided as to whether calcium from dairy products such as milk, yogurt and cheese or calcium from dark-green-leafy vegetables is better assimilated by the human body. I mean really good authorities with plenty of academic studies to back up each point of view. What to do when the authorities can't agree? The answer seems simple keep lots of both in your diet. The dark-green-leafies include broccoli, rapini, chard, kale, beet and turnip greens, and to a much lesser extent the deeply colored lettuces such as oak leaf and romaine. If your nutrition is not very healthy right now, it will take some time to accustom yourself to a better regime, perhaps an entire year. That's why a knowledgeable nutritionist or naturopath could help with support suggestions. I'd start by visiting my local farmers' market, most cities have them now, and please especially check out the organic produce. 5) a walk on the wild side something to think about. Wild greens are chock-full of valuable minerals including calcium, magnesium and potassium, and they're brimming with vitamins. Dandelion leaves, for example, contain more minerals and vitamins than spinach. Another high-mineral wild green leaf is nettles, traditionally made into nettle soup or an infusion to drink (combine with fruit juice or your favorite tea if you like.) You can find these wild greens at a local farmers' market, or perhaps at your health food store. You could even learn to find and gather them in the countryside yourself. One interesting herb called horsetail helps to deposit calcium into bone tissue. It grows wild across north America and is sold in health food stores. You'd make it into an infusion (steep for 4 hours or more to extract the minerals.) In the morning, combine with tea heat as a breakfast beverage. Use this no more than 1 or at the most 2 weeks out of 4, as it contains silica. This is good for your joints in small quantities, but should not be taken daily for long period of time. 6) certain foods are a big caution because they contain oxalic acid. This combines with calcium in the bloodstream and gets excreted as calcium oxalate, so the result of eating these foods is a net calcium loss. These foods are: rhubarb, spinach, sorrel and to a much lesser extent, chocolate. It's OK to have rhubarb 1 or 2 or 3 times a year, when it's fresh, but it's not OK to scarf down spinach 3 times a week while believing it's good for you. Pop-eye was wrong. 7) I'm sure your doctor has gone on and on about how you must do weight-bearing exercises. These build up bone tissue. Walking is just great. It's perfect for you. Please leave that car at home. Could you join a hiking or walking group. They're interesting fun a painless way to save your bones. Swimming, by the way, is not considered a weight-bearing exercise, because the water supports the body. Bicycling is not as helpful as walking, because the bike bears the weight, not the human skeleton. re: Fosamax. The questionable news about this is that the bone tissue that results is lacey and brittle. Studies have shown that patients taking this and other similar medications have just as many fractures as control groups, even if their bone readings improve in tests. 9) if you smoke, your doctor has already lectured you about this. It's a real no-no for osteoporosis patients. Wishing you the very best. It's a long year of work, but I personally believe osteoporosis can be avoided. If the disorder is present it can be stopped. I even believe it can be reversed, the frequent use of H2 receptor antagonists (zantac - ranitak -and others) for the treatment of peptic ulcer lead to hypochlorohydria -anacidity- and indigestion of proten this dangerous and leads to renal and hepatic failure and senility

Review

Yes, the instruction to take the tablets with an 8-oz glass of water in the middle of a meal is ridiculous. It gives me the impression that the company doesn't know what they are talking about. Water will dilute the enzymes and therefore has a negative impact on digestion. The formula is inadequate; magnesium among other bone health minerals are inadequate or missing. The form of calcium is oxalate which can cause kidney stones. There were NO INDEPENDENT studies on AlgaeCal.

Review

I have been taking Glucosamine and Chondroitin for probably 15 - 16 years and until recently in the pill form. I read an article that said pill form isn't injected completely and therefore was wasted on your system. This article also said liquid form was 100% injected and the article also recommended the Seacoast brand as one of the top performers so I gave it a try. I ordered 2 bottles and after finishing the first bottle I realized my arthritis wasn't as painful. As I said trying the Seacoast brand was just dumb luck for me. My wife started using the liquid also and she also noticed her back felt a lot of relief. The pill form also gave both of us stomach aches, not so with Seacoast. I really feel this was a Godsend for both of us. I am 73 years old and lead a very active life. I play golf (18 holes) every day weather permitting and come home pain free from the golf course. Thankyou Seacoast for a wonderful product that really brings relief.

Review

One of the major causes of Vitamin D deficiency is insufficient exposure to sunlight. For this reason, people with indoor lifestyles as well as people living in regions with less sunlight are more likely to have lowered vitamin D levels. Certain health conditions and medications may also inhibit absorption or increase metabolism of the vitamin. Your mom can raise her vitamin D level by spending at least 20-30 minutes in the sun every day or taking pill supplements.

Depending on the specific cause of her deficiency, the strength of the supplement will vary:-
 Inadequate sun exposure: 50,000 IU per week for 8 weeks-Malabsorption caused by health conditions: 50,000 IU every day or every other day-Medications that increase vitamin D metabolism: 50,000 IU every 2 weeks for 8-10 weeks
 Foods rich in vitamin D, such as pickled herring, canned boned salmon, and mackerel, will also help. While red meat does combat iron deficiency, other dietary staples such as bread and other starches inhibit the absorption of iron. Additionally, excessive blood loss and certain chronic diseases may also lead to lowered iron levels. During their childbearing years, women lose twice as much iron as men from menstruation and pregnancy. Consultation with a doctor will help your mom to uncover the particular cause of her iron deficiency. In the meantime, meat and ferrous sulfate supplements will increase the iron in her system.

Review

Every single relative of mine has died of some form of cancer. My doctor stated the obvious; "You are genetically cancer-prone". DUH! No Kidding! A friend told me of Dr Krebs' studies and the phenomenal results for both patients who had cancer, and those who wanted to take a maintenance dose to avoid it. I decided it was an inexpensive natural solution, so why not give it a try. Well, lo and behold, within 2 days of taking a maintenance dose I saw an amazing change in my body (I started at 7 kernels a day as advised by Dr Krebs, and worked my way up to 24 a day since I weigh 240 and the suggested dose is 1 kernel for each 10lbs.) I have had terrible knees and hips for 2 years. When I can walk it can best be described as a waddle, and I can't go far. Well, at the end of the second day of the kernels I suddenly realized that ALL PAIN IN MY KNEES AND HIPS WAS GONE!!! Now I'm not saying that my knees and hips are young again; they're not; I still have limited range of motion. But I truly believe that I may not have been suffering from arthritis, but an early onset of bone cancer. I am lead to believe this because in all of the literature I've read nowhere are there claims that the kernels do anything for arthritis, only cancer. I thank God that I found these kernels, and I will never be without them again.

Almased is a healthy natural weight loss phenomenon with proven results!

Review

Yes, the instruction to take the tablets with an 8-oz glass of water in the middle of a meal is ridiculous. It gives me the impression that the company doesn't know what they are talking about. Water will dilute the enzymes and therefore has a negative impact on digestion. The formula is inadequate; magnesium among other bone health minerals are inadequate or missing. The form of calcium is oxalate which can cause kidney stones. There were NO INDEPENDENT studies on AlgaeCal.

Review

Coral calcium has been hyped a lot, but my nutri-tron prof was not impressed with it. As a supplement in pill form, we'd look for calcium citrate, chelated calcium or (last choice) calcium lactate. A good idea is to buy high-quality products and rotate among brands each time you buy. We are never 100% sure that these natural products have in them exactly the ingredients they say, hence the high-quality names and the rotation. At the risk of sounding like a nag, may I add a few remarks: 1) there's something wrong with your 2mg dosage. A minimum dose for an osteoporosis patient would be one gram per day, which is 1000 milligrams. Please pay strict attention to the label on the bottle. You are looking for the elemental calcium content, not the milligrams or grams of calcium compound. For example, a 600 mg Ca tablet can actually contain only 150 mg of elemental calcium. Most high-quality manufacturers will specify on the label the milligram content of the compound and also the milligram content of elemental calcium. If the label does not present this information, it would be best to avoid this product. 2) calcium (Ca) must always be combined with magnesium (Mg). The reason is that a high-calcium or calcium-only intake will result in a net calcium depletion of the bone tissue. The body must always maintain Ca/Mg in a specific balance in the bloodstream. If the human being overdoses on calcium only, the ingenious body will dissolve bone tissue to obtain the magnesium necessary to keep the blood balance. This important fact is sometimes neglected by medical doctors. A common practice is to prescribe 1 or 2 grams of calcium only, while neglecting magnesium. A recipe for disaster. The proportion of Ca to Mg is about 2 to 1. Most high-quality calcium preparations will also present magnesium in the right proportion. Or you can buy them separately. If buying separately, the same caution re elemental magnesium will apply. Ideally, you will be looking for something like

1 gram of elemental calcium plus 500 mg elemental magnesium per day. This should be taken in staggered doses during the day, with meals because Ca Mg absorb better with food. For example, one 500 mg Ca with 200-250 mg Mg with lunch, another with dinner, a third with breakfast if you like. 3) all osteoporosis patients should modify and re-work their entire nutri-tron program. The goal here is to prevent calcium loss from the bones, rather than simply increasing the oral intake. Can you find someone to work with you, possibly in a low-cost clinic associated with a good school of naturopathy or a nutri-tron faculty in your area. Your goal here is to change gradually from a diet that burns to an acid ash this is the typical North American diet to one that leaves a more alkaline ash. Foods to reduce are meat, excessive protein, junk foods, processed commercial foods, soda pop, excessive sugar, white flour products and coffee. Foods to increase are simple. More vegetables. More fruit. More vegetables. Whole grains. More vegetables. Beans and lentils. More vegetables. 4) more on nutri-tron. Authorities are divided as to whether calcium from dairy products such as milk, yoghurt and cheese or calcium from dark-green-leafy vegetables is better assimilated by the human body. I mean really good authorities with plenty of academic studies to back up each point of view. What to do when the authorities can't agree? The answer seems simple keep lots of both in your diet. The dark-green-leafies include broccoli, rapini, chard, kale, beet and turnip greens, and to a much lesser extent the deeply colored lettuces such as oak leaf and romaine. If your nutri-tron is not very healthy right now, it will take some time to accustom yourself to a better regime, perhaps an entire year. That's why a knowledgeable nutri-tronist or naturopath could help with support suggestions. I'd start by visiting my local farmers' market, most cities have them now, and please especially check out the organic produce. 5) a walk on the wild side something to think about. Wild greens are chock-full of valuable minerals including calcium, magnesium and potassium, and they're brimming with vitamins. Dandelion leaves, for example, contain more minerals and vitamins than spinach. Another high-mineral wild green leaf is nettles, traditionally made into nettle soup or an infusion to drink (combine with fruit juice or your favorite tea if you like.) You can find these wild greens at a local farmers' market, or perhaps at your health food store. You could even learn to find and gather them in the countryside yourself. One interesting herb called horsetail helps to deposit calcium into bone tissue. It grows wild across north America and is sold in health food stores. You'd make it into an infusion (steep for 4 hours or more to extract the minerals.) In the morning, combine with tea heat as a breakfast beverage. Use this no more than 1 or at the most 2 weeks out of 4, as it contains silica. This is good for your joints in small quantities, but should not be taken daily for long period of time. 6) certain foods are a big caution because they contain oxalic acid. This combines with calcium in the bloodstream and gets excreted as calcium oxalate, so the result of eating these foods is a net calcium loss. These foods are: rhubarb, spinach, sorrel and to a much lesser extent, chocolate. It's OK to have rhubarb 1 or 2 or 3 times a year, when it's fresh, but it's not OK to scarf down spinach 3 times a week while believing it's good for you. Pop-eye was wrong. 7) I'm sure your doctor has gone on and on about how you must do weight-bearing exercises. These build up bone tissue. Walking is just great. It's perfect for you. Please leave that car at home. Could you join a hiking or walking group. They're interesting fun a painless way to save your bones. Swimming, by the way, is not considered a weight-bearing exercise, because the water supports the body. Bicycling is not as helpful as walking, because the bike bears the weight, not the human skeleton. re: Fosamax. The questionable news about this is that the bone tissue that results is lacey and brittle. Studies have shown that patients taking this and other similar medications have just as many fractures as control groups, even if their bone readings improve in tests. 9) if you smoke, your doctor has already lectured you about this. It's a real no-no for osteoporosis patients. Wishing you the very best. It's a long year of work, but I personally believe osteoporosis can be avoided. If the disorder is present it can be stopped. I even believe it can be reversed,

Review

I have been using Dr. Christopher's Lung & Bronchial Formula for a couple of weeks now, and it has really helped relieve my asthma symptoms. My doctor had me on a steroid medication for this condition, which made my really "puffy" looking, which I hated, plus I did not really want to be inhaling steroids. So that's the reason I started doing research and found this. I couldn't be happier with the results, and my puffiness is gone!

Subject: Malware notification regarding algaecal.com

Dear site owner or webmaster of algaecal.com,

We recently discovered that some of your pages can cause users to be infected with malicious software. We have begun showing a warning page to users who visit these pages by clicking a search result on Google.com.

Below is an example URL on your site which can cause users to be infected (space inserted to prevent accidental clicking in case your mail client auto-links URLs):

http://www.algaecal .com/

Here is a link to a sample warning page:

<http://www.google.com/interstitial?url=http%3A//www.algaecal.com/>

We strongly encourage you to investigate this immediately to protect your visitors. Although some sites intentionally distribute malicious software, in many cases the webmaster is unaware because:

- 1) the site was compromised
- 2) the site doesn't monitor for malicious user-contributed content
- 3) the site displays content from an ad network that has a malicious advertiser

If your site was compromised, it's important to not only remove the malicious (and usually hidden) content from your pages, but to also identify and fix the vulnerability. We suggest contacting your hosting provider if you are unsure of how to proceed. StopBadware also has a resource page for securing compromised sites:

<http://www.stopbadware.org/home/security>

Once you've secured your site, you can request that the warning be removed by visiting

<http://www.google.com/support/webmasters/bin/answer.py?answer=45432>

and requesting a review. If your site is no longer harmful to users, we will remove the warning.

Sincerely,
Google Search Quality Team

Note: if you have an account in Google's Webmaster Tools, you can verify the authenticity of this message by logging into <https://www.google.com/webmasters/tools/siteoverview> and going to the Message Center, where a warning will appear shortly.

Subject: RE: Friendly Reminder From AlgaeCal | Website Issues

Hello,
When I try to order more AlgaeCal & Strontium Boost from the AlgaeCal website I get automatically redirected to the following website: <http://lanelabs.com/?/Strontium-Boost-p21.html> and this website/online store does not sell AlgaeCal supplements from what I can see?
Has something happened to the AlgaeCal webstore that I can't place online orders direct anymore?

Please let me know ASAP as I need to place another order for these wonderful AlgaeCal supplements.

Sincerely,
Barbara Medlin

Subject: Friendly Reminder From AlgaeCal

Dear Barbara,

Myself and the AlgaeCal team would like to sincerely thank you for joining the bone building revolution, helping to put an end to osteoporosis, naturally...and for being a valued customer.

It's been about 1 month since you ordered AlgaeCal. We know how hectic life can be so we're just sending a quick reminder to ensure you don't run out.

To re-order please Visit Here or call toll free 1-800-820-0184 within North America and +1604-899-2002 for international calls.

If you have already re-ordered OR stocked up with a 3-6 month supply please disregard this message.

Thanks again for using AlgaeCal...the only proven bone BUILDING calcium supplement.

To Your Health,

Dean Neuls
CEO
Algaecal Inc
